Make another child's Christmas a lot more special

Is your child going to get a lot of presents from Father Christmas this year? Why not consider cleaning out their old toys, that are in good order, in November and donate them to an opportunity shop. OUR COUNCIL

Kala Petronijevic is Kingston's Young Citizen of the Year & Dingley Venturers Group is Young Community Group of the Year.

Kala Petronijevic and the Dingley Venturers Group were the big winners at this year's Kingston Youth Awards. Kala is Kingston's Young Citizen of the Year for 2024, while the venturers were named the Young Community Group of the Year.

Kala's story is one of incredible resilience and determination. Despite severe vision impairment, she has excelled academically and demonstrated exceptional adaptability.

Beyond her studies, Kala introduced blind tennis to Cheltenham, creating an inclusive space for children with vision impairments to enjoy sports.

Through her efforts, she has fostered a supportive community, empowered others, and promoted social connection. Kala's dedication to breaking down barriers makes her a true role model, inspiring a more inclusive future.

The Dingley Venturers Unit is the most active in Kingston, known for their strong teamwork, community spirit, and dedication to service. From mentoring younger scouts to volunteering at ANZAC Day services, park cleanups, and Kingston events, they consistently give back.

Their commitment inspires younger scouts, fostering a spirit of volunteerism and leadership. With 80% of them pursuing the prestigious Queen's Scout Award, these Venturers are not just reaching milestones, but shaping themselves as future leaders.

The winners were selected from an outstanding group of finalists, who have all made a significant contribution to the Kingston community. Kingston Mayor Jenna Davey-Burns said the annual awards are a wonderful celebration of the talents and achievements of our young people in Kingston.

"We are really lucky to have so many young people in Kingston taking such an active role in our community and we're proud to host this event to shine a light on their positive contributions."

Cr Davey-Burns said.

"Their stories as young leaders are inspiring as they drive positive change across our city, and I can't wait to follow their journeys moving forward. They are going to achieve great things."

The Youth Awards are open to young people aged 12-25 who have a strong connection to Kingston. To find out more head to www.kingstonyouth.org.au

Remembrance Day

We will remember them

Remembrance Day is on 11th November and traditionally one minute's silence at 11.00am marks the sacrifice made by our servicemen and women. Remembrance Day has evolved since it was first marked by allied countries after World War I, in which more than 60,000 Australians lost their lives. Remembrance Day marks the end of fighting on the Western Front on November 11, 1918.

Originally the anniversary was known as Armistice Day, in reference to the formal agreement the German leaders signed to end the war. The name was changed to Remembrance Day after World War II ended in 1945.

November 11 is now observed around the world as a day to remember the sacrifice that countless people have made in service to their country. One minute of silence at 11.00am on this day provides time to remember a relative, friend or ancestor, or reflect on the sacrifice of those who have served and died in war.

The red poppy has been a symbol of remembrance and hope since World War I and many people purchase and wear poppies and poppy badges on the week leading up to Remembrance Day. Remember that poppies sold help our local RSLs fund their programs for ex servicemen and women. The poppy is symbolic because the bright red flowers grew in their thousands in the barren, muddy battlefields of Western Europe. Rosemary is also a symbol of remembrance and has particular significance to Australians as it grows wild on the Gallipoli peninsula.

The Rotary Club has made the decision to concentrate their efforts in facilitating two highly regarded ANZAC Services in April and not hold a Remembrance Day Service, but we invite members of the community and/or community groups to place flowers on the memorial in Marcus Road if they wish to on 11th November.

The Ode, which is from the poem For the Fallen by Laurance Binyon.

They shall grow not old as we that are left grow old:

Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn.

At the going down of the sun and in the morning

We will remember them.

LOOKING AT LOANS

Future home buyers should be ready

There are many pitfalls for unwary homebuyers. However, there are a few simple precautions that you can take to make the experience of buying a property an enjoyable and profitable one.

1. Get into the 'saving' habit

A savings record proves you can manage your spending, with proven lower living expenses increasing your ability to obtain a loan. The deposit you save also increases options available. How much deposit you need is an individual discussion – call us for that!

2. Control existing debt

Be responsible with existing debts. How you manage your credit cards, car loans or personal loans, determines your credit profile in buying a house. Making repayments on time is important, having a debt default is a major hurdle to overcome. Speak to your broker about if it is best to pay out existing debt or not, there is a balance between needing deposit and needing free monthly cash flow, this will vary person to person, you should seek personal advice.

3. Understand property costs

Learn the actual cost of buying and owning a property. There are significant purchase costs, then ongoing fixed expenses such as council and water rates, and variable expenses like utilities and maintenance. Budgeting the loan repayment is only a part of the equation.

4. Know your limits

Only go house hunting after you know how much you can borrow and what purchase price you can afford. There is no point in setting your heart on a house that is out of your price range.

5. Compare lenders, and loan products

There are thousands of loan products in the marketplace, each has its place and purpose. You deserve the loan product most appropriate to your personal requirements, one that suits your budget and your circumstances. The above may sound daunting, but it need not be. Develop your trusted team and open the discussions. If you have a 'money talk' phobia, it is time to get over it!

MONEY TALK

Unfortunately, researchers report almost half of Australians don't want to talk about money. Surveys show 42% avoid discussing personal finance, a higher percentage than avoiding talking about religion (40%), sex (38%), or politics (23%).

I think that is disappointing. Whilst keeping personal finance details confidential is understandable, general discussions and passing on to others what you have learnt is an important part of assisting friends and family find their way financially.

Attitudes are changing, with the younger generations being more open. The study did show Gen Y being far more open to money talk than Baby Boomers. Of course, it is always important to consider the 'qualifications' of who you talk with.

A healthy dose of scepticism should always be on hand. However, in these days of social media bombardment we are all used to that.

We should remember:

- There will always be someone who knows something we do not; learning opportunities should be sought.
- There will always be someone you can assist to a better financial knowledge.
- Learning from mistakes is as important as any other advice! Let others know your mistakes and try to learn from mistakes made by others.

With over 70% of home loans now submitted via the broker channel, mortgage brokers are proven to be a key part of the 'money talk' team for most Australian homeowners.

Brokers exist to help you to the best loan and structure, but also to make the experience of purchasing a house stress-free.

Integrity Finance Australia has been serving the Dingley Village community since 2006. If you have any questions on the issues raised in this article or borrowing capacity or your home loan in general, then please email support@ifafinance.com.au, or call us on 03 9511 8883.

Lung cancer

Lung Cancer is the leading cause of cancer deaths for both sexes and it is estimated that there will be over 8,900 deaths from lung cancer in 2024. While most people with lung cancer develop it at 60 and over, it can affect people of any age. Symptoms vary from person to person so it's important to stay on top of your health and have a check-up if there's anything of concern

If lung cancer is found at an earlier stage, there is more chance of a better outcome. It's important to know the symptoms of lung cancer as although lung cancer occurs mostly in people aged 60 and over, it can affect people of any age.

New and constantly evolving treatments such as immunotherapy are likely to continue to improve outcomes for people affected by lung cancer.

What is lung cancer?

Lung cancer occurs when abnormal cells in the lungs grow in an uncontrolled way. The cancer may start to grow in the lungs first (primary cancer) or may spread to the lungs from a cancer somewhere else in the body (secondary cancer/metastatic cancer).

What are the symptoms?

- coughing up blood
- a new or changed cough that doesn't go away
- chest pain and/or shoulder pain or discomfort – the pain may be worse with coughing or deep breathing trouble breathing or shortness of breath
- hoarse voice
- weight loss
- loss of appetite
- chest infection that doesn't go away
- tiredness or weakness
- Many conditions can cause these symptoms, not just lung cancer.

Many conditions can cause these symptoms, not just lung cancer. Anyone can get lung cancer, even if they have never smoked.

If you have any of these symptoms and they are persistent, talk to your doctor.

What are the risk factors for lung cancer?

A risk factor is any factor that is associated with increasing someone's chances of developing a certain condition, such as cancer. Some risk factors are modifiable, such as lifestyle or environmental risk factors. Others cannot be modified, such as inherited factors and whether someone in the family has had cancer.

Having one or more risk factor does not mean that you will develop cancer. Many people have at least one risk factor but will never develop cancer, while others with cancer may have had no known risk factors.

Factors that are associated with a higher risk of developing lung cancer include the following:

Lifestyle factors

Current or former tobacco smoking – this is the greatest risk factor for lung cancer. The risk is greatest for people who begin smoking early in life, smoke for longer and smoke more often.

Environmental or occupational factors

- Exposure to second-hand smoke (passive smoking).
- Occupational exposures, such as exposure to radon, asbestos, diesel exhaust and silica. Exposure to asbestos also increases the risk of developing mesothelioma, which starts in the lining surrounding the lungs (the pleura).
- Exposure to air pollution.

Personal factors

- Increasing age.
- Family history of lung cancer.
- History of chronic lung disease, including chronic obstructive pulmonary disease and pulmonary fibrosis.
- Personal history of cancer, including lung cancer, and head and neck cancer.
- History of radiation therapy to the chest for other cancers.
- Infection with HIV (human immunodeficiency virus)
- Certain gene mutations.

If you have any of these symptoms and they are persistent, or are concerned about your risks, talk to your doctor.

Systemic Diseases Detected Through a Posterior Eye Examination

A posterior eye examination is not only vital for assessing ocular health but also plays a crucial role in identifying systemic diseases.

The eyes are often referred to as "windows to the body" because many systemic conditions can manifest through changes in the retina and other structures at the back of the eye. Let's explore systemic diseases that can be detected during a posterior eye examination:

Diabetes Mellitus

Diabetes can lead to diabetic retinopathy, characterised by damage to the retinal blood vessels. Signs such as microaneurysms (small bulges in the small blood vessels), retinal haemorrhages, and cotton wool spots (nerve inflammation of the retina) can be identified during the examination. Early detection of these changes is essential for preventing vision loss and managing diabetes more effectively.

Hypertension

High blood pressure can cause hypertensive retinopathy, identifiable through changes in the retinal vessels. An optometrist may observe narrowing of the arteries and retinal haemorrhages. These findings can indicate the need for better blood pressure management and monitoring of cardiovascular health.

Hyperlipidemia

Elevated cholesterol levels can lead to the formation of retinal deposits, yellowish-white skin exudates (known as xanthelasma) or arcus senilis (the white ring located on the coloured portion of the eye). These findings can suggest systemic hyperlipidemia, prompting further cardiovascular risk assessment and lifestyle modifications.

Multiple Sclerosis (MS)

In MS, inflammation of the optic nerve can be observed during a posterior eye examination. Signs such as optic disc edema or changes in the optic nerve head can indicate demyelinating lesions, providing important diagnostic clues.

Systemic Infections

Infections like syphilis or HIV can affect the eyes, leading to conditions such as retinitis or chorioretinitis (inflammation of the retina and/or the retinal blood supply). An eye examination may reveal characteristic retinal changes, aiding in the diagnosis of these systemic infections.

Thyroid Disease

Thyroid disorders, particularly Graves' disease, can lead to changes in the eyes, including proptosis (bulging eyes) and alterations in the optic nerve appearance. A posterior eye examination can reveal signs that suggest thyroid dysfunction, leading to further evaluation.

Cancer

Certain systemic cancers, like leukaemia or lymphoma, can manifest in the eye through retinal haemorrhages or infiltrates. These findings can be critical for early diagnosis and intervention in systemic malignancies.

Cerebral Masses

Brain tumours, whether primary or metastatic, can lead to increased intracranial pressure, resulting in papilloedema (swelling of the optic nerve head). During a posterior eye examination, an optometrist can observe this swelling, which may prompt further neuroimaging to investigate potential cerebral masses.

Heart Disease

Conditions such as atherosclerosis can lead to the development of plaques in the retinal blood vessels, similar to those found in coronary arteries. These changes can be visible during an eye examination and may indicate an increased risk of heart disease. Additionally, findings like retinal ischemia or changes in the optic nerve can suggest compromised blood flow to the heart and other organs.

A posterior eye examination serves as a valuable tool for detecting a variety of systemic diseases. Changes in the retina and optic nerve can provide early warning signs, facilitating timely intervention and management. Regular eye exams are essential, especially for individuals with risk factors for these conditions. If you experience any visual disturbances or have a history of systemic diseases, consider scheduling a comprehensive eye examination to safeguard your overall health.

At Dingley Eye Centre, we pride ourselves on our knowledge and desire to stay up to date with the latest research to better look after your eyes and preserve your vision. We are passionate about your sight and the health of your family's eyes.

Navigating Beneficiary Tax: Protecting Your Superannuation Legacy

Superannuation plays a pivotal role in Australia's retirement system, providing individuals with a tax-effective way to save for their later years. However, when it comes to passing on superannuation benefits to beneficiaries, tax implications arise that many people overlook. This is referred to as Beneficiary Tax. Understanding these tax obligations, and then implementing strategies to minimise them can help protect benefits passed down to loved ones.

What is Beneficiary Tax in Superannuation?

When a superannuation member passes away, their superannuation balance is typically paid to a nominated beneficiary, or their estate. This balance may consist of two components: a tax-free component and a taxable component. You may have noticed these on your super or pension statements. The way each component is taxed depends on the relationship between the deceased and the beneficiary.

Death Benefits Paid to a Dependent

If the beneficiary is a "superannuation dependent," such as a spouse, de facto partner, or dependent child (under 18, or financially dependent), the entire death benefit can generally be received tax-free as a lump sum.

Death Benefits Paid to a Non-Dependent

If the beneficiary is a non-dependent for tax purposes, such as an adult child over 18 and not financially dependent, they will likely pay tax on the taxable component. The tax rates applied are:

- 15% plus Medicare levy on the taxable component taxed within the fund (the element taxed).
- No tax on the tax-free component.

This tax can significantly erode the inheritance, especially if the superannuation balance is large and comprises of a considerable taxable component. For example, a $500,000 superannuation death benefit with a taxable component of $400,000 could attract a tax liability of up to $68,000 for non-dependents.

How is Taxable Component Created?

Taxable Component is an accumulation of any income of the superannuation, which can include contributions that are concessional taxed within the fund. For example, when an employer makes a superannuation guarantee contribution (SGC) into your fund, the employer receives a tax deduction within their business. This tax deduction means that the amount of the contribution has not yet been taxed by anyone. Enter the ATO! The contribution made by the employer is taxed within your superannuation fund at 15% (Contributions Tax).

As the business making the contribution may be normally paying a higher rate of tax than 15%, then it is deemed to be a CONCESSIONAL rate of Tax. By adding these amounts to the Taxable Component, the government are effectively 'flagging' these so they can be taxed later if that superannuation does not end up becoming a part of your (or your spouse's or dependant children's) retirement funding.

The same applies for contributions you might make personally, such as salary sacrifice or tax-deductible contributions. Earnings of your superannuation fund (which are generally taxed at 15%) can also added to the Taxable Component 'Bucket'.

How is tax free component created?

Effectively, any contribution made to your superannuation fund that has already been taxed, is allocated to your Tax-Free Component. These are often called Non-Concessional (or after tax) contributions.

Strategies to Minimise Beneficiary Tax

There are several different strategies that can be utilised to minimise (or even eliminate) the impact of Beneficiary Tax, all of which have pros and cons. Great caution should be taken before employing any of those strategies, as some will have unintended consequences which may result in you paying more tax than what your beneficiaries would have.

We have chosen not to disclose these strategies in this article as it is important that all factors should be considered prior to any implementation.

How does Taxable Component affect me?

In short, it doesn't. Regardless of whether you implement strategies to reduce your taxable component within superannuation or not, there is zero financial benefit to you. In truth, all you get out of minimising this hidden "Death Tax" is the peace of mind in knowing that you took all available steps to maximise the financial legacy you leave behind to your loved ones. Given the complexity of these strategies and the ever-changing superannuation landscape, it's advisable to seek professional advice tailored to individual circumstances. Thoughtful estate planning can ensure that superannuation savings provide the maximum benefit to loved ones with minimal tax implications.

Dingley Football Netball Club

Both the Football and Netball seasons are now behind us and again Your Dingley Football Netball Club has achieved outstanding results, some of which are highlighted below. Significantly the Southern Football Netball League has for the eighth time in ten years recognised DFNC as its 'Club of the Year'. That is just reward for everybody who has worked so hard to obtain that honour.

Brand new facilities await us in 2025 at Souter Oval as we enter an exciting new era, and we invite all Dingley residents to be part of it as we strive for continued success.

A brief summary of some of the 2024 on field achievements are as follows:

- The Senior football team were Runners-Up to unbeaten Cheltenham, (falling short by just two points).
- Dingley Reserves were Premiers, after being unbeaten all year. See picture below.
- Under 19s made it to the Preliminary Final after being short of numbers at the start of the year.
- Our Thirds produced some big wins towards the end of the year after a slow start.
- SFNL Seniors Leading Goalkicker: Caleb Lewis.

- SFNL Reserves Leading Goalkicker: Luke Frith.
- SFNL Reserves Best and Fairest joint winner: David Cowell and Cameron Hansen.
- Division 1 and Division 2 Netballers were Runners up.
- SFNL Netball Leading Goal shooter: Monique Lenahan- Moustafa.
- SFNL Netball Division A1 Best and Fairest: Lorna Clark.
- SFNL Netball Division C2 Best and Fairest: Caitlyn Van Elewoud.
- Senior Football Club Best and Fairest went to Jackson Peet "by the length of the straight" after he played every game.

Please visit the club's website for all the club's various award winners, which include the election of two new Life Members.

Just hours after the SFNL Grand Final, the club lost one of its most respected volunteers in Ron Mohamad, who served as Property Steward for decades before his recent illness. Ron was unique, passionate about his club and respected by all who knew him, and he is being sadly missed.

His memory will live on, as the club's annual Best Club Person Award is now known as the Ron Mohamad Award.

MENS SHED

Does Recycling Really Work?

And who cares anyway???

A couple of months ago Tim Moran, Kingston Council staffer and coordinator of the Kingston Local Government Area (LGA) Men's Sheds floated the idea of two sheds combining with a local small business to assist the council in an upcoming awards night.

The concept was that recycled piano timber be used by the two Men's Sheds to make certificate frames for awards to be presented at the Sustainable Business Awards Night. The Dingley Village and Chelsea Men's Sheds combined with Pianos Recycled to make the timber frames for the certificates for this gala event.

The venue was the Moorabbin Town Hall, where more than 300 people in formal attire participated making the occasion a night to remember. With the Men's Sheds and Pianos Recycled receiving well earned recognition for their part in re-birthing what might otherwise have gone to landfill it was a fitting way to acknowledge the many businesses involved in recycling in our LGA.

What really stood out was to see and hear about the number of clever recycling ideas which are transforming the way we live - and the best part - it is happening right in our own backyard. Making us ALL winners. Surely, this is proof of the old adage.

Cat confinement

Kingston City Council requires all owners of cats to keep their cat/s securely confined to the owner's property between sunset and sunrise. This was introduced in response to public consultation undertaken with the community regarding their concern about the negative environmental impact of cats on native animals and the nuisance value of wandering animals for neighbouring households.

Why is cat confinement important?

There are many benefits related to cat confinement and cats can be easily trained to accept confinement. Cats allowed to roam can be killed or injured through car accidents and fights with other animals. They may contract fatal diseases such as Feline AIDS or be more likely to require veterinary attention for fleas, ticks, worms, abscesses, cuts, diarrhoea and other illnesses. For these reasons, cats kept inside generally live longer than cats which are not confined. The safety benefits are even greater for cats kept inside or in an enclosure both day and night.

Better neighbourhood relations

By keeping your cat indoors, it will not be able annoy neighbours by spraying and howling. Roaming cats also cause disputes and anxiety between neighbours by causing dogs to bark, by fighting with other cats, and by defecating in gardens.

Less predation of wildlife

Cats are most active at night, particularly between dusk and dawn. This coincides with the activity periods of many species of native wildlife. If given the opportunity, cats will instinctively hunt and kill wildlife, even if they are not hungry. Keeping your cat indoors will help protect our Australian wildlife.

Compliance with laws

Kingston City Council requires all owners of cats to keep their cat/s securely confined to the owner's property between sunset and sunrise. In addition, if your cat repeatedly enters private property without permission, the landowner or occupier has the right to take action to stop your cat trespassing, under section 23 of the Domestic Animals Act 1994.

Are cats happy indoors?

Yes! If you provide for all their needs, de-sexed cats are happy to live indoors. Cats do not need to roam; they need exercise and play.

Where and how do I confine my cat?

- There are several options for confining your cat.
- Simply keep your cat inside the house with you
- Confine your cat at night in the garage
- Build a cat enclosure for your yard
- Build a cat-proof boundary fence around your property

New Glasses

My new glasses were the very latest concept glasses and promised to change the way I viewed some of the more enjoyable things in my life.

They were designed by AI to be the perfect combination of looks and practicality. The first was essential to get the high cost of them passed Sue who was very much a form over function type. I was in the function over form type of guy so they had to work and deliver on the claim to change my view of the world. If they failed to deliver on either of the claims, someone was going to be upset.

My hands were steady as I opened the box and lifted our new glasses out. Sue murmured softly "They look perfect."

She was happy. I eased the cork out a bottle of malt and poured a generous measure. Lifting it I savoured the aroma of the malt before tasting it.

Smoke and seaweed flooded my senses. Not earth shatteringly different perhaps, but still..... bloody good!

Our day tour was to the Tesselaar Tulip Festival. A spectacular display of Tulips and Spring Flowers, plenty of delicious food options and photo opportunities, contributed to a very relaxing day in the sunshine. The day was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The guest speaker at our October meeting was Pam Haigh, along with her working dog Bryl and retiring dog Aster. Pam explained how new technology was helping blind people with their daily routine, such as answering emails making and receiving mobile calls etc. Pam travels with Bryl domestically and Internationally, and has just returned from America, where she did a Mississippi River cruise for 10 days, along with another 10 days in LA. Guide dogs cost $70,000-$80,000 to train, but unfortunately the government provides no subsidy for training these guide dogs.

Sunday Services: 10am Service has Children's Ministry.

The Young Adults Ministry at Kingston City Church continues to grow strong this year with an average of 30 in attendance each week.

Operating every Wednesday @7pm, we start the night off with a delicious meal, followed by worship, and finishing off with an interactive discussion on the word of God. The Holy Spirit has really been teaching in our discussions this year as we've been going through the book of Matthew and Luke. As we enter term 4, we look forward to seeing what God will do next.

The Young Adults Ministry caters for those who are aged between 18-30 years and would like to fellowship with like-minded believers. The ministry operates from Kingston City Church every Wednesday (except school holidays) from 7pm-9:30pm.

If you are a Young Adult and would like to grow in your faith, please contact Carlo - carlo@crm.org.au or call 03 8551 6610
